After Death, What then? - Heaven

Point 1: The reward of Heaven and living in the presence of God will be worth _____ and _____. There is nothing that is worth more than our eternal salvation. And there is no middle choice...we will either be in _____ or _____.

Point 2: Heaven will be unimaginable in _____, not a floating in the clouds in an ethereal solitude, but a real, overwhelmingly _____ place.

Point 3: Heaven won't be _____ with nothing to do. God has _____ for us that will occupy us in a fulfilling way.

Point 4: When we are in heaven, we will be _____. That is, we will not only be free from _____, we will be free from the _____ to _____.

Point 5: Heaven will provide us with everything we need to be _____, content, _____ and _____.

Preacher's Porch

I know that this revelation may seem obvious to some of you, but to me it really was a revelation. Did you know that there are some people that just like to argue? And it really doesn't seem to matter to them whether they are right or wrong; they just want to be in the middle of or causing some type of controversy, complaint, problem, etc. Every time.

Now, let me tell you when I came to this realization. It was in the middle of a baseball game and I wasn't even umpiring. At one point in the game, the home plate umpire made a rather unusual call that went against the visiting team. Batter interference caused the batter to be called out and the base runner to go back to first base. Now, as you would expect, the visiting team coach came out and visited with the umpire who made the call and, after an explanation, returned to the team area. Everything was good (or so it seemed). But here's the weird part...during the half-inning break, the home team coach (who has a reputation for such things) came out and started an argument with the umpire who had made the call. He wasn't arguing that it was the wrong call. He wasn't arguing that it was the wrong assessment. He was arguing that the umpire should have made the same call earlier in the game at a different point (and different circumstance) and demanded to know why it wasn't called then.

What I am saying is this, by that point, any call made previously could not have been changed. He had been the recipient of a controversial judgment call that had helped his team and everyone else had already forgotten the other non-incident (which was never in question at the time it happened). In other words, it was a useless argument to make and served absolutely no purpose except to try to show the umpire who was boss...to intimidate.

As they stood belly to belly (literally, I have pictures) I could not help but be reminded of what the Bible says in Titus 3:9-10 "9 But avoid foolish controversies and genealogies and arguments and quarrels about the law, because these are unprofitable and useless. 10 Warn a divisive person once, and then warn them a second time. After that, have nothing to do with them." continued inside..

You see, in our faith, we come across people like that. They only want to confuse the issues, confuse, intimidate or frustrate us as we search for God's way and God's will and God's purposes. We are not to be caught up in such issues but to "do what is good."

According to the rules of baseball, since the coach was questioning and complaining about a judgment call, the umpire should have warned him once and then sat him on the bench (or ejected him). According to God's rules, we are to do the same to someone who is trying only to cause strife. Focus on God, only He is able to overcome. In Him, Todd
