Preacher's Porch

The very first Sunday I ever came to worship in Henrietta, I was privileged to get to preach. Now, many of you will recall that when I moved to Henrietta 10 years ago, I did not come as a preacher. I came as a school teacher. It just so happened that I came in the crease of time between Ryan leaving and Joe Puckett arriving and on the Wednesday before (we were in town unloading a trailer), it had been announced that the church was still looking for a preacher in that week. I signed up.

As I began to prepare for that lesson, there were a couple of questions that were in the front of my mind. First, if this is the only opportunity I ever have to speak to this body, what message do I want to share? Second, if I want to fit in as a part of this body, what tone do I need to take while I preach? And finally, what if I make someone mad?

The conclusion I came to actually answered all of these questions in one shot. You see, I decided that there is no other message except Christ crucified and the redemption that comes from Him that would be worthy of either your time or mine. I also decided that, if this was too straight-forward, it was still my obligation to speak of this message of hope and that, if it made people mad, well, at least it was the truth of the gospel and that I had a greater obligation to God and His son, Christ Jesus, than to man. And so I spoke, plainly and straight-forwardly for about 45 minutes.

As it turned out, I offended no one (that I know of), I and my family were welcomed with open arms, and we gratefully serve here 10 years later.

Please don't think I am patting myself on the back. That is not my intent. My intent is to challenge you. If you only had one opportunity to address a group, a gathering, an individual, what message would you present? Paul said, "For I resolved to know nothing while I was with you except Jesus Christ and him crucified." (1 Corinthians 2:2). But in fact, we come into contact with people every day that we may never see again. We talk politics. We talk school or work or weather. I challenge you; tell them the story of Jesus. Nothing you ever do in life will matter as much. In Christ, Todd
